

Debby Kilburn

Debby's background experiences and education helps her to share vision with the Charter School community. She has spent several years as a K-12 substitute teacher. Debby's daughter Emily graduated RCS in 2010. Her other children also attended RCS until a recent family move to Phelan. Debby has been a college technology professor teaching both students and faculty for over 11 years. Education is no longer about memorizing facts for a test. Students need to be better prepared for 21st century careers that demand they know how to find, interpret, analyze, synthesize, create, and utilize information and teachers need to be better supported to help students prepare for careers that may not even exist yet. Debby is a parent who cares about the education her children receive and has a desire to help make education the best possible experience for all students and families.
